Her design philosophy harmoniously melds the natural allure of the West Coast with traditional elements, encapsulating earthy textures, sunlit interiors, and a belief that a home should evoke a feeling. Her career commenced in 2014 with a prominent home builder, evolving to collaborations on diverse projects in prominent locations.

One notable project involved a transformation in Newport Beach. Originally a 1958 cottage, the residence was reimagined for a family of four. Extensive renovations included raising the roofline, adding square footage and a pool, and reconfiguring interior walls for modern living.

Each room was meticulously tailored to the client's preferences, featuring custom cabinetry, opulent marble, statement lighting, and plumbing selections that made a bold statement. The project exemplified collaborative excellence with a dedicated team ensuring meticulous execution.

Zehner's commitment to infusing homes with both function and beauty is the hallmark of her design ethos, and her career journey reflects her unwavering dedication to this pursuit.
